Du Bois sends Hayes information on the approximate travel cost for his studies in Europe, which he estimates to be $1,000.
Cambridge, 6 May, '91.

Hon. R. B. Hayes,

Dear Sir:

In reply to your favor of the 23, ult. let me say that I have inquired of the head of my department, Prof. Hart, and he informs me that the expense of study in Europe will be about six hundred dollars a year. It is of course possible that the second year would be cheaper than the first, as one would know better how to economize. I think therefore that one thousand or eleven hundred dollars would suffice.
