

Steam. Ship Toyoshima

Sunday June 11th. 8 P.M.

Yokohama Harbor

To-morrow morning at four o'clock I expect to sail for the North. The steamer is a small one; but staunch and tolerably fast. I might get a much larger & more comfortable steamer by waiting one more day; but I will not do it.

The smells on this steamer are beyond description, for she has been used for the transportation of fish.

No more at present
for the light is very faint.

With love as ever
Will.